

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An image processing device includes a data zone expansion circuit and an image processing circuit. The data zone expansion circuit receives input data, increases a number of data bits of the input data, and provides data with the increased number of data bits. The image processing circuit performs image processing on the data with the increased number of data bits.